JULY 29

BATTALION CHIEF CURT ISAKSON
ESCAMBIA COUNTY FIRE RESCUE

TRUCK OPS

Previously, he served with the District of Columbia Fire Department and the Wyckoff, N.J. Volunteer Fire Department. He has a bachelor's degree in fire science from John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York City. He is the lead instructor for the FDIC Truck Essentials H.O.T. program and hands on training instructor at numerous conferences across the country. He wrote the Ladder chapter and co-authored the Ventilation chapter for Fire Engineering's Handbook for Firefighter I and II (Fire Engineering, 2009) and is featured in "Training Minutes" truck company videos on www.FireEngineering.com and his Bread & Butter Portable Ladder Training DVD is available from Pennwell Corp. His monthly column ON FIRE is on the back page of FIRE ENGINEERING

JULY 31

Division Chief Jimm Walsh
WINTER PARK FIRE DEPARTMENT

ENGINE COMPANY OPERATIONS: "GALLONS PER SECOND"

The focus is on exceeding fire flow needs and still managing water during the crucial initial hoseline advancement in an interior offensive attack. Learn why it is necessary to think in terms of gallons per second at this time. Strategies are presented for managing the booster tank supply until a sustainable water supply has been established. The class is especially relevant for engine companies that commonly engage with the booster tank and deploy suburban fire tactics. All aspects of first-due fire tactics at your most common structural fires and how to quickly and effectively suppress them are covered.

JULY 30

LIEUTENANT MICHAEL CIAMPO
FIRE DEPARTMENT NEW YORK

FROM THE JUMP SEAT TO THE FRONT SEAT

From the creator and editor of VENTENTERSEARCH.com and a nationwide instructor of leadership and truck company functions courses taught at FDIC and FIREHOUSE EXPO, Chief Walsh brings you this extremely motivational and informative leadership class that will focus on much more than basic leadership principles. While there are some basics of leadership that are applicable for any rank, this class will cover some more specific principles for each rank from the bottom to the top.

This conference is being held in honor and reverence to the memories of Lieutenant John Mickel and Firefighter Dallas Begg. May we never forget their sacrifice and by remembering them through this conference, may we ensure "Everyone Goes Home". All proceeds benefit THE MICKEL-BEGG MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP FUND. Thank you for your continued support!
